

Dr James Heyes serves as Genevant's SVP of Technology Development. James' responsibilities include the development of nucleic acid delivery systems, including Genevant's Lipid Nanoparticle platform. The Technology Development team also supports Genevant's collaborative partners as they advance products that utilize Genevant's LNP technology. James has been with the company since 2001, and holds a PhD in Medicinal Chemistry from the Institute of Cancer Research in London, UK.