

John Androsavich, PhD, is Associate Director of Research and Process Development at Translate Bio. He previously held research roles at Regulus Therapeutics and the University of Michigan. John received his PhD in Chemical Biology from the University of Michigan and his BSc in Biology from the University of Pittsburgh-Bradford. His research has focused on mRNA, non-coding RNA, translational regulation, and nucleic acid therapeutics.